The feweler's patience was ebbing rapidly. He did his very best to appear urbane and suave, but his customers seemed determined to tax his powers of endurance to their utmost limit.

The girl had no idea of what she wanted; the man was there merely in the role of paymaster—whatever she bought he would indorse with dollars and cents. He had no idea of his own on the subject, and offered no advice.

"Whatever shall I get?" asked the fair customer in despair. "I declare if I had thought it would be so hard to choose an engagement ring I would never have been engaged. No, John, you needn't look at me in that manner. I repeat that I would never have been engaged."

The man appeared annoyed at this display of femining very and zeal. It also kept his honor unstained and his character without a brings sorrow and anxiety to the owner.

"Rubies are more suited for young lovers. They are also more expensive. The people of the Burmese Empire believe that a ruby is a human soul just about to enter the sacred precincts of Buddha, and consequently in the last stages of transmigration. A ruby is an emblem of the most passionate and absorbing love. A ruby in the old days of chivalry was supposed to lead a knight to conquest, to cause obstacles to melt away, and to inspire one with bravery and zeal. It also kept his honor unstained and his character without a blemish.

Superstition Never Wanes.

"Perhaps I can tell you something about the different stones and the superstitions attached to them that might help you to decide," he said, suavely.

"Of course, you know," he began, "that most of the superstition attached to rings and the wearing of rings dates from the fifteenth century, and is popularly supposed to be completely extinct at the present enlightened time. Never was there such a mistake. Ring superstitions are as rife today as they ever have been, though no one would dare confess that he believes in them. I have scores of people come in here armed with an array of facts—alleged facts, I should say—concerning precious stones which would fill an octavo book without difficulty.

"A ring set with sapphires is supposed to possess a very great moral power. No man would dare to wear one in any knowledge of the subject of ring superstition. Should he be indiscreet enough to do so, his actions will at once be known to the one whom he holds dearest. Now, you may suppose that sensible people wouldn't believe such a thing. But they do, hundreds of them, I can assure you. The sapphire is also supposed to signify piety and goodness. In olden times it was the favorite stone for the letery.

"Every one knows that opals are considered exceedingly unlucky, and I don't be a factor of the subject of ring supersition. Should he be indiscreet enough to do so, his actions will at once be known to the one whom he holds dearest. Now, you may suppose that sensible people wouldn't believe such a thing. But they do, hundreds of them, I can assure you. The sapphire is also supposed to signify piety and goodness. In olden times it was the favorite stone for the clerry.

"Earls are great favorites among the lades contemplating matrimony. Pearls have always been the particular emblem of purity—I suppose on account of their color. They are also credited with representing modesty. In Persia to his day people suppose then to be drops of water which by some means entered there. SOME DAINTY FRUIT DESSERTS THAT ARE NOW IN HIGH FAVOR

The Housewife Tries to Make the Most of the Glut Now on the Market.

The season for fruit is all too short and the housewife tries to make use of it as often as possible. Just now the market is glutted with domestic fruit the country over. Raspberries, huckle-berries, peaches, new summer apples, watermelon, cantaloupes, cherries, all sorts of plums, gooseberries, late currants, and apricots, are to be had at reasonable prices, while bananas and pineapples, among the imported fruits, are sometimes desirable to use in combination with the domestic article.

For breakfast fresh fruit only should be served, and there is nothing better for this meal than cantaloupes chilled. But for luncheon or tea stewed fruits are sometimes more palatable than raw, and richer combinations, such as fruit with puddings, are often in demand for dinner. Gooseberries, stewed and sweetened with a liberal hand, make a delicious luncheon dish. The tart cherries used for pie have fully as nice a flavor as if stewed and sweetened for a luncheon or tea dish. Green apples, the terror of homemakers, lend themselves admirably to many desserts. Here are some recipes for cooking new apples, and preserving the fiavor, which children, big and little, like.

Apple Snow.

Apple Snow.

Pare and core two large tart apples, bake without browning until they are soft. Turn into a good sized bowl and pour over them a small cup of pulverjeour over them a small cup of pulver-ized sugar. Break into this mixture the whites of two eggs and beat together constantly with a flat spoon or egg beater for half an hour. By this time the mixture will look like driven snow. Pour it into a moid and when ready to serve turn it into a flat glass dish or compote and pour around it an egg cus-tard or whipped cream.

Baked Apple Dumplings.

One quart flour, one cup sweet milk, ne-half cup of butter, two heaping teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Peel and quarter six tart apples. Roll the crust thin and cut it into six parts. Pinch securely over the apples; place in a pan and pour over ail a rich strup of sugar and water. Serve with cream.

AT AGE OF 89 Started to Walk From

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 11.—A letter given out by Miss Edith May Killen, of Viola, Kent county, Del., tells in Cora Killen's own words why she shot herself through the heart in the Sharon Hill Rallroad station on August 2. Following is the girl's explanation:

"Dear Sister: I wish to say a few words to you concerning my soon departure. Edith, I was born for trouble, as I have said many times, and I am having it in abundance. You know I never had much show in this world, and it seems for the last three years I have had less.
